

IFS Logistics Certification

We certify logistics activities based on the IFS Logistics scheme.

What is IFS Logistics certification?

IFS Logistics is a scheme for auditing logistics activities on the basis of quality and product safety. Thanks to this standard, trade and industry have a common goal: to achieve transparency and traceability throughout the entire supply chain. Specifically, the standard has been developed to assess all areas of logistics such as warehousing, distribution, transport and loading and unloading activities.

Benefits of IFS Logistics certification

If you certify your company according to IFS Logistics you could benefit from:

- Increased sales
- Reduced operating costs and increased efficiencies
- Continuous improvement, driven by the scoring system
- Individual risk assessments
- And customised solutions.

Objectives of the IFS Logistics certification

The scheme applies to food and non-food products:

- Packaged food products
- Specific bulk food products
- Temperature-controlled products (meat, fish, bread, milk, oil, etc.)

- Non-food household and personal care products, packaging, textiles, etc.

Who should use IFS Logistics?

You can become IFS Logistics certified if your company is involved in any of the following services:

- Storage and transport of containers or bulk materials in trucks, trains, planes, ships or grain silos/elevators.
- Cold chain - frozen or refrigerated
- Freezing and thawing as a service (under specific conditions)
- Fruit ripening
- Dry storage
- Warehouse
- Distribution centre
- Food service distribution to restaurants or airports
